

Example of Development Technician Job Description

Powered by www.VelvetJobs.com

Our growing company is looking to fill the role of development technician. If you are looking for an exciting place to work, please take a look at the list of qualifications below.

Responsibilities for development technician

- Perform routine control and calibration of instruments and equipment if required
- Develops skills in multiple technical areas
- Applies experience to identify and solve non-standard technical or operational problems
- Proposes improvements to processes/operations
- Communicates own work and team task progress orally and in writing
- Reports and treats documentation/data with a high level of integrity and ethics
- Provide training for operators
- Building and testing shock absorbers to support customer tuning activity and lab testing
- Run shock absorber testing using various types of shock absorber test machines
- Interface with the customer independently or as part of a small team

Qualifications for development technician

- Bachelor's Degree in Chemical/Materials/Metallurgy Engineering/Materials Science or equivalent
- Minimum 2 years of working experience in the related field is required for this position
- Knowledge in Scanning Electron Microscope (SEM) and Fourier Transform

- The candidate should be able to work in a lab environments and be self-motivated, and be comfortable with the constantly changing priorities of a product development team
- Completed and successfully passed the apprentice scheme or this can be offset with relevant development/test experience